

Pamela Taylor

Executive Coach, Taylor Macpherson, and Chair of the Energy Switch Guarantee

Pamela Taylor is a non-Executive Director and Chair with 15 years' experience in the energy sector. She is currently the Independent Chair of the Energy Switch Guarantee board, which is responsible for the commitments by signatories of the guarantee, namely energy suppliers, to improve standards and to build consumer trust in switching. She is also Chair of the Compliance Committee of the Green Gas Certification Scheme, which tracks biomethane, or 'green gas', through the supply chain and issues certificates to those who purchase the gas.

Pamela is widely recognized for her knowledge and experience in the energy sector and regularly chair panels and speaks at industry conferences. A former Director at FTI Consulting, and Partner at Ofgem, she has significant experience advising clients on regulation, business strategy, engagement with policymakers and trends in innovation. In 2016, Pamela launched Ofgem's Innovation Link and the world's first regulatory sandbox for the energy industry. These provided innovators free advice on energy sector regulation and the opportunity to trial innovation without facing full regulation. She has held various roles in Ofgem, including in compliance and enforcement, market design and European strategy.

A qualified executive coach, Pamela has built and led high performing teams, managed change and now, founded her own coaching practice. Taylor Macpherson offers individual and team coaching to leaders and organisations seeking to build effectiveness and drive cultural change.
